1. General guidelines

Dr. Michael Toffolo is the Principal Investigator (henceforth, "IP") of the project PEOPLE (PalaeoEcology and OPen-Landscape adaptations of Pleistocene humans in South Africa), whose objective is to determine whether freshwater availability exerted key selective pressure on the evolution, ecology, and dispersal of anatomically modern humans in the semi-arid interior of South Africa during the Middle and Late Pleistocene, and ultimately to understand how and when humans settled in the central interior of South Africa.

This project has been selected to receive funding from the European Research Council (ERC) as part of the European Union's Horizon Europe Research and Innovation Program (Grant Agreement No. 101039711). These funds stand at €1,499,856 and the project will be developed for 5 years starting on September 1st 2022 at the Centro Nacional de Investigación sobre la Evolución Humana (CENIEH).

The project PEOPLE will be pursued through an interconnected network of researchers from different fields of geochronology, archaeology, the geosciences, and other related fields, some of whom will work at the CENIEH and be led directly by the IP, while the rest are external collaborators from different European, African, and American research centers.

The Grant Agreement signed with the European Commission (no. 101039711) includes a specific allocation for hiring a full-time, R2 postdoctoral researcher, so that this hire will be 100%-financed by the funds of the Project PEOPLE within the framework of the abovementioned funding program.
